Preface

This draft book is a collection of bynames from three Bavarian sources from 1495 and 1497. An example entry looks like the following:

The spelling in bold is a standardized form; often the most common modern spelling, but also sometimes the most common medieval spelling. The header form is followed by brief etymological and derivation notes, when known. Spellings in italics are dated forms, followed by their date. Forms followed by ‘F’ were only used by women. Those followed by ‘P’ were prepended before the given name. Occasionally a vowel is superscripted over another vowel. I have used square brackets to indicate this. For example, Lo[e]sin indicates that the e is superscripted over the o.
