

Middle English Bynames in Early Fourteenth-Century London

Sara L. Uckelman

This book is dedicated to Brian M. Scott, for being excellent proof that one can be both a mathematician and an onomastician. The depth and breadth of his knowledge never ceases to amaze me, and it is exceeded only by his willingness to share this knowledge.

Chapter 1

Introduction

1.1 Aims and scope

This work builds on and expands the work on bynames done by Eilert Ekwall in his edition of the 1292 and 1319 subsidy rolls of London, originally published in 1951, [Ekw1]. Chapter IV of his introduction gives a 10-page discussion of both given names and bynames in the two rolls. Our focus here is on expanding both Ekwall's etymological notes and his discussions of the different types of bynames and their distributions. We do so by focusing on the bynames in the 1319 subsidy roll (which has the largest data set), and then providing comparative data from the subsidy rolls of 1292 and 1332 (the latter edited in [Cu]) in appendices 7 and 8.

Variants spellings are ground together; I have also grouped Latin forms with their vernaculars, when both exist, but I have kept separate bynames which have the same meaning but otherwise come from different linguistic backgrounds (such as le Pessonner, from OFr, and le ffisshemonger, from OE). Alphabetization is done by the most common spelling of the substantive element, ignoring all initial articles and prepositions. When both Latin and vernacular forms occur, the alphabetization is done by vernacular form, even if the Latin spelling is more common.

The bynames have been divided into four broad types: patronymics and matronymics, locatives and toponymics, occupational and metonymics, and other descriptives.

1.2 Distribution by type

1.2.1 Patronymics & matronymics

1.2.2 Locatives & toponymics

1.2.3 Occupational & metonymics

1.2.4 Descriptives

1.3 Distribution by language

1.3.1 English

1.3.2 French

1.3.3 Latin

1.3.4 Other

1.4 Distribution by ward

The taxation of London was done by ward. In 1319 there were 24 wards, with a total of 1855 entries in the tax list (this includes entries which were struck out, either at the time of writing or later). It is very difficult to say what the population of London was at this time, as there is a distinct lack of suitable records. Gray bounds the population in the 14th century with 11,000 (c. 1100), and 45,000 (c. 1400) ([Gr], appendix 1), but Williams postulates that London was “at least comparable with Brussels or Ghent , which were around the 30,000-40,000 mark in the early fourteenth century” ([Wil], 315) and Sheppard says that “by 1300 there were probably between 60,000 and 100,00 inhabitants” ([Sh], 92). This means that the percentage of people who owned enough land and had enough money to fall within the bounds of a subsidy taxation is anywhere between 1% and 17%.<sup>1</sup> Whichever number is correct, one conclusion that can be drawn is that the vast majority of the inhabitants of London are not represented in this subsidy roll, and that we must take care to remember that any conclusions that we draw from this data set likewise apply only to a small fraction of early 14th century London names.

These 1855 people were divided throughout the words with the following distribution:

Aldersgate 43 entries
Aldgate 25 entries
Bassishaw 36 entries
Billingsgate 57 entries
Bishopsgate 66 entries
Bread Street 90 entries
Bridge 82 entries
Broad Street 74 entries
Candlewick 68 entries
Castle Baynard 60 entries
Cheap 173 entries
Coleman Street 58 entries
Cordwainer 74 entries
Cornhill 60 entries
Cripplegate 111 entries (within), 80 entries (without)
Dowgate 57 entries
Farringdon Within 173 entries
Farringdon Without 108 entries
Langbourn 75 entries
Lime Street 11 entries
Portsoken 42 entries
Queenhithe 81 entries
Tower 75 entries
Walbrook 76 entries

1.5 Editorial practices

I have retained all capitalization as it was found in the source material. In doing so, I have alphabetized ff as if it was just F. When listing given names, I have converted them from Latin ablative forms to Latin nominative. Given names which were not Latinized in the original I have left unchanged. When a given name has been abbreviated such that the full form is ambiguous, I have simply used the abbreviated form.

1.6 Acknowledgements

I'd like to acknowledge my great debt to the Academy of Saint Gabriel for being one of the best resources for learning more about medieval naming practices than you could ever have believed possible. Special thanks go to Academy members Wendi Dunlap-Simpson, Kathleen M. O'Brien, and Brian M. Scott. The chapters on unidentified bynames would be much larger were it not for their suggestions and help.

Bynames in the 1292 subsidy roll of London which do not occur in the 1319 subsidy

This appendix covers bynames which occur in the 1292 subsidy roll of London for which there is no corresponding form (in any spelling variant) in the 1319 subsidy. As with the previous data, I have maintained capitalization of the bynames as found in my source. Here the given names were recorded either in the vernacular or in Latin nominative (and often abbreviated). For the former I have used the form as found in the roll, for the latter I have expanded all abbreviations, and in both cases I have capitalized the first letter (except when the name begins ff). When the expanded form of a given name is unsure, I have noted this. I have universally expanded Rec' to Recardus.

Bynames in the 1332 subsidy roll of London which do not occur in the 1319 subsidy

Like the previous, this appendix covers bynames which occur in the 1332 subsidy roll of London for which there is no corresponding form (in any spelling variant) in the 1319 subsidy. Likewise, I have maintained capitalization as found in my source, but here while the given names were recorded in Latin nominative, they are often heavily abbreviated. I have expanded abbreviations of given names throughout, retaining any abbreviations in the bynames. When the expanded form of a given name is unclear, I have noted this.

1632 people were taxed in this subsidy. Compared to the 1855 in the 1319 subsidy, this is a reduction of 12%. These 1632 people were distributed throughout the wards as follows (the number in parenthesis notes the percentage reduction or addition compared to the 1319 numbers):

Aldersgate 43 entries (0%)
Aldgate 21 entries (-16%)
Bassishaw 18 entries (-50%)
Billingsgate 49 entries (-14%)
Bishopsgate 47 entries (-29%)
Bread Street 78 entries (-13%)
Bridge 71 entries (-13%)
Broad Street 74 entries (0%)
Candlewick 45 entries (-34%)
Castle Baynard 46 entries (-23%)
Cheap 127 entries (-27%)
Coleman Street 58 entries (0%)
Cordwainer 73 entries (-1%)
Cornhill 42 entries (-30%)
Cripplegate 75 entries (within) (-32%), 43 entries (without) (-46%)
Dowgate 85 entries (+49%)
Farringdon Within 130 entries (-25%)
Farringdon Without 97 entries (-10%)
